

Course code	Course title	Responsible lecturer
FoNC-621	Community based natural resources conservation
Contents and goals of qualification	Contents: Introduction to Community based natural resources conservation; Stakeholder analysis. natural resources governance and levels of participation; establishment and application of participatory natural resources management projects and programs; principles of community based participatory approaches; qualitative and quantities indicators of Community based natural resources conservation, Analysis of cases of Community based natural resource conservations in the Ethiopian context. Principles and practices of PFM in Ethiopia Goals of qualification: Graduates will be able to analyses stakeholders interest in forest and nature conservation planning and design workable Community based natural resources conservation practices.
Modes of teaching and learning	The course comprises: 2 hr/wk Lecture and 3 hrs/wk practical (seminar paper, field visit, and independent studies)
Applicability	Compulsory
Credits and assessment	3 (2+3) Credit hour; Seminar paper (30%), Field report (20%), Written exam (50%)

Text books	Kumar, S. (2002). Methods for Community Participation. Vistaar publications, New Delhi. FAO. (2000). Conflict and Natural Resource Management Fisher, R. and Ury, W. (1983). Getting to Yes: Negotiation Agreement without Giving in. Penguin Books, New York. Recent peer reviewed journal papers published in the Ethiopian context shall be used for seminars
--------------------------	--